About three months ago Mr. Ferrell came to this city and was employed at the Richmond Cedar Works. His boarding place was at No. 308 Louisiana Street, Fulton, where he was a regular lodger until Saturday night last. On the afternoon of Saturday Mr. Ferrell came into town without bothering to remove his working clothes. So far as is known he had no money of any consequence upon working clothes. So far as is known he had no money of any consequence upon his person. About 11 o'clock that night he was at Seventh and Main Streets where he announced his intention of going immediately home.

He went on down the street, and about and hour and a half later was seen at Seventeenth and Main in company with two strange men. The fact of his association at this hour with strangers was at first taken to indicate that there might have been some foul play, but thorough examination of the remains and various inquiries by Dr. Taylor entirely discredite

Handy Husband

Knew How to Get Part of the Breakfast, Anyhow

"'I know one dish I can prepare for breakfast as well as any cook on earth,' said my husband one day when the cook was ill and he had volunteered to help get breakfast. He appeared with his dish, and I discovered it was Grape-Nuts, which, of course, was easy to prepare for it is perfectly cooked at the factory, but it was a good illustration of the convenience of having Grape-Nuts about.

"We just added a little cream and, of course, had a delicious bit of food. We took up Grape-Nuts immediately after returning from a five years' sojourn in a hot country, and our stomachs were in a bad condition and we were in bad health generally. When we first tried it I confess we thought there were other and better things to eat and were told we must acquire a taste for this new food. Sure enough, in a day or two we liked Grape-Nuts better than any other kind of food on the table. We both gained steadily in health and strength, and this was caused by Grape-Nuts and Postum Food Coffee.

"A friend of ours had a similar experience. She was seriously

"A friend of ours had a similar experience. She was seriously ill with indigestion and could find nothing to eat that would not give her heartburn and palpitation, especially at night. She found that a small dish of Grape Nuts with cream made her a satisfactory supper and gave her a comfortable night's rest. In a short time she has gained several pounds in weight."

Important Financial Interest Seeks Control.

IT CAUSES MUCH GOSSIP

Rockefeller-Gould Combine is the One Which Has Made the Offer, According to the Report of Dame Rumor.

(By Associated Press.) NEW YORK, June 9.—The statement is made on the best of authority that an which has agreed to underwrite the $75, 000,000 new Pennsylvania Railroad stock at 120 by a very important financial in stock that may come into the syndicate possession. In fact, it is asserted that this financial interest is ready to take possession. In fact, it is asserted that this finencial interest is ready to take all the new stock. It is intimated that with its present holdings the possession of the new stock would probably carry control of that potential property.

The identity of the interest which seeks control of the Pennsylvania is not disclosed, but rumor has for some time attributed such a desire to a group of very powerful financiers, including the Hockefeller-Gould interests in combination. It is further stated that the proposed purchasers have offered to take the stock at a fixed percentage over the syndicate price.

The possibilities of such a deal—change of Pennsylvania control—have been frequently discussed later in Wall Street, where it is thought the return of normal conditions will reveal some very decided changes in railroad ownership.

It has been suggested that the acquisition of an influential voice in Pennsylvania by Rockfeller-Gould interest would put an end to the strained relations that have so long existed between the most important railroad interests in the country, inasmuch as it would give the Goulds a much desired outlet to the Atlantic scaboard, more particularly to this port, and would otherwise adjust a number of difficulties which have for a long time obstructed the furtherance of the "community of interest" policy.

THE COMMITTEE IS NOT TALKING

This Body is Busy Fixing Rates of Insurance, but Keeping Mum.

Keeping Mum.

The Virginia Committee of the Southenstern Tariff Association was in session again yesterday, and considerable discussion on rates occurred. The committee has not yet elected a permanent chairman, and nobody is giving out anything being done or attempted. It is generally known that the committee is taxing its brains with figures, which represent on the one hand the losses sustained by fire in Richmond for some years past, and figures on the other hand representing the profits of the various companies in the same number of years. From the apparently simple process of reasoning, the body, which is composed of exceedingly level-headed men, with Mr. Robert Lecky, Jr., as a most worthy representative of Richmond, hopes to be able to fix on rates that are fair and equitable to all.

A considerable amount of work will have to be done before the committee can work to advantage, and a session of the whole committee will not be held for several days.

Investigation by Coroner Taylor falls to produce any signs of foul play, and the supposition prevails that the unfortunate man toppied in while strolling along the river bank. The discovery of the body was first made by a man, name unknown, who saw it shoot up from the water. He informed the coroner and Dr. Taylor rescued the body. He secured a boat and with the assistance of one or two persons who voluntered their services, he succeeded with a piece of wire in securing the remains. Letters on the person of the decased disclosed his personality and the identification was later made complete by friends.

KILLED BY NIGHT TRAIN

Now Generally Felt that Young Craddock Met His Death Then.

tion with the sad affair confirms the Later information obtained in connection with the sad affair confirms the family of young Arthur Craddock in the belief that he was killed not on the early morning train, which it was said he attempted to board, but by the night train on which he was riding up town and from which he probably attempted to alight.

The statement that the young fellow intended to go to Ballmore, and was, in fact, making his way here when he met his death, now turns out to be incorrect. He had in fact expressed a desire to visit friends in the Monumental City, but when his father indicated a desire for him to wait awhile he willingly agreed to postpone the trip. Accompanied by two friends he boarded the night train, the fireman upon which he knew, and set out to ride up from the Union Depot to Elba, near which latter station he lived. At Monroe Park his friends jumped off, and it was at this point that he was killed. It is possible that he attempted to follow the example of his companions, missed his footing, and fell under the wheels. However this may be it is now generally conceded that he was killed at this time—at 11 o'clock at night—when he was preparing to go home. His body probably lay upon the track until the early morning fast train came along, for upon the pillot of this train blood, it is said, was discovered, which could not have been the case had he been killed by it. This furthermore accounts for the strangely mutilated condition of the remains.

The father and family of the young man wish to convey to their friends their sincere thanks for sympathy manifested to them in their sad bereavement. Personal response cannot be made to the many kind and thoughtful expressions of these friends, and the family adopt this method of indicating to ...em their heartfelt thanks.
